

Chiquita to be recognized for environmental efforts

Downtown-based Chiquita Brands International will be recognized for its environmental sustainability efforts at a ceremony at the company's headquarters today. The company won the 2009 Circle of Excellence Award from the Distribution Business Management Association. The trade group presents the award to one company each year that represents excellence and a strong commitment to the environment. Chiquita landed the award for its global supply chain management and its work with the MIT Center for Transportation & Logistics to launch a multi-year effort to determine correct carbon footprint measurements within its supply chain.
